History

The first confederation to stage an age-group tournament for women was UEFA in 1997 with the European Women's U-19 Championship. In a move to further promote the women's game, FIFA followed suit with its own competition for young women. As was FIFA's intention, the event has encouraged member associations to develop women's football at youth level and to set up teams in younger age groups, including the U-13 and U-15 brackets. Moreover, the championship has also prompted the confederations to organise continental qualifying competitions.

Eleven years after China hosted the inaugural FIFA Women's World Cup™ in 1991, Canada provided the venue for the very first FIFA U-19 Women's World Championship, an event that brought together the world's top youth sides and proved a resounding success both on the pitch and at the turnstiles.

The tournament attracted no fewer than 295,133 spectators, an impressive average of 11,351 per game. Not surprisingly, the final drew the biggest crowd, as 47,784 fans flocked to Edmonton's Commonwealth Stadium to see the USA become the first side to claim the world youth crown.

Two years later it was Thailand's turn to stage the event in a 12-team tournament that generated an overall attendance figure of 288,324. In 2006, the tournament was held in Russia when the age limit was raised from 19 to 20 years of age, paving the way for a new competition: the FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, bringing women's youth football in line with its male counterparts.

The all-new women's world youth competition, the FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup, was launched in New Zealand in 2008 and was followed by Trinidad & Tobago in 2010, Azerbaijan in 2012, Costa Rica in 2014 and Jordan in 2016. Sixteen teams take part in the event playing a total of 32 matches.

Trophy

Designer	Thomas Fattorini Ltd, Birmingham, UK Rebecca Cusack
Manufacturer	Thomas Fattorini Ltd, Birmingham, UK
Description	The original concept was inspired by the movie 'Bend it like Beckham' which portrays a Sikh girl who breaks traditions and plays football in a girls' team. The aspiration to bend the football around a defensive wall sparked the idea for the two upright curved supports holding up the globe in the shape of a football – a consistent feature amongst almost all of FIFA's event trophies. The overall elegant and pure appearance of the Official Trophy is characteristic of the nature of how the game is played in this women's age group.
Year of design and manufacture	2007
Material	Brass copper based alloy, sterling silver
Weight	5.1 kg
Height	46 cm
Base diameter	17 cm
Widest point	17 cm
